A Basic Introduction to Korean Language

This illustrated dictionary presents 1,500 frequently-used Korean words and phrases, including those that students need to know to pass the TOPIK, Test of Proficiency in Korean exam for non-native speakers. The dictionary is organized into 38 themes, each of which presents 30-40 words. Each section also has three to five sentences demonstrating the usage of the words. The words and sentences in the dictionary all appear in the following order: Hangeul characters, followed by the pronunciation in standard romanization form, followed by the English meaning.

History of the Korean Language

Researchers and linguists debate the origin of the Korean language. Some link it with the Altaic language family, which includes Mongolian, Turkic, and Tungusic language groups. The people within these groups lived in the Altai Mountain Region, which included northeastern Siberia to the Persian Gulf and from the Baltic Sea to China. These languages have similar components. The syllables are composed of a consonant + a vowel. They have vowel harmony. There are constraints on which vowels can be put together. And there are few consonant clusters.

Korean is one of the oldest spoken languages. History shows that two languages were spoken in Manchuria and on the Korean peninsula, the Northern or Puyo group and the Southern or Han group. During the 7th century, during the time of the Three Kingdoms Period, the Silla dialect became the dominant language. Then in the 10th century, the Koryo Dynasty moved the capital to Kaesong, in which the Kaesong dialect became the dominant language. At the end of the 14th century, the Chosun Dynasty moved the capital to Seoul; however, the language remained the same.

Before the 15th century, the Korean language was written using classical Chinese hanja characters that only elite scholarly people knew. This form of writing was too difficult to teach to all the people. Also, hanja reflected the meaning of words but not the sounds of the Korean language. The people couldn't express themselves properly in their language and had to simplify by using the Chinese hanja. Therefore, in 1443, King Sejong, with the help of scholars and his older children, created Hangeul, the phonetic Korean writing system. Hangeul became an easy writing system for the common people of Korea and has led to their high literacy rate. Hangeul tied the socio-economic classes of Korea together. Now, everyone could read and write, not just the literati. Hanja or Chinese characters are still used on formal documents and birth certificates as most Korean names and their meanings are derived from Chinese characters. Around 1800 hanja are still taught in Korean public schools.

Hangeul, noted as a scientific alphabet, has unified the country and has been their source of pride. During Japanese colonial occupation (1910–1945), Koreans were denied their language. They were forced to learn Japanese. But the people showed unity and resisted Japanese rule through their language. Just like other languages, there are dialects among the provinces, but the only dialect that is quite different is the dialect spoken on Jeju Island, south of the mainland. Today Koreans celebrate their language on October 9, Hangeul Day, and they are the only country in the world to do so.

The Korean Alphabet

The Korean alphabet was written specifically for the Korean language. Therefore, all Korean letters only make one or at the most two sounds; whereas, an English vowel can make several sounds. Hangeul is hard to use with foreign words. For example, when a word ends with a hard consonant, Koreans add an additional “eu” sound to the ending. Also, there is no f, v, or z in Hangeul. Fork is pronounced “po-keu.” Page is pronounced “pay-gee,” and trump is “trum-peu.”

Hangeul is written in syllables rather than one letter behind the other. The shapes of the letters correspond to the shape of the mouth, tongue, and throat when pronouncing the sound. There are 10 vowels and 14 consonants. However, there are also 5 double consonants and 11 vowel combinations or diphthongs, which you’ll see in the table below.

The Romanization of Korean

When writing Korean sounds using English letters, one must remember that the romanization will always make the same sound, unlike English vowels where an “a” can have many sounds like in bat, father, and date. You might see a Korean word written with romanization in various ways (for example: the city of Pyeongtaek, Pyongtaek, and Pyungtaek). Which way is correct? The Korean government has devised an official romanization system, but you might still see variations on signs and other places because of dialects and long ago there were different systems of spelling using romanization. Today there are two systems of spellings remaining: the McCune-Reischauer system and the government sponsored system. The first was devised in the early 1930s by children of missionaries who grew up in Asia, George M. McCune and Edwin O. Reischauer. It was used until 2000, when the government created its own Revised Romanization of Korean by the Ministry of Culture and Tourism. The government system is the official system and more commonly used. Below are examples of Korean romanization.

The Korean Alphabet and Roman Letters

Consonants

(1) Simple consonants

ㄱ	g, k	ㄴ	n	ㄷ	d, t	ㄹ	r, l	ㅁ	m
ㅂ	b, p	ㅅ	s	ㅇ	ng	ㅈ	j	ㅊ	ch
ㅋ	k	ㅌ	t	ㅍ	p	ㅎ	h

(2) Double consonants

ㄲ	kk	ㄸ	tt	ㅃ	pp	ㅆ	ss	ㅉ	jj
---	----	---	----	---	----	---	----	---	----

Vowels

(1) Simple vowels

ㅏ	a	ㅑ	eo	ㅓ	o	ㅕ	u	ㅡ	eu
ㅣ	i	ㅗ	ae	ㅛ	e	ㅜ	oe	ㅟ	wi

(2) Compound vowels

ㅘ	ya	ㅙ	yeo	ㅚ	yo	ㅜ	yu	ㅟ	yae
ㅝ	ye	ㅞ	wa	ㅜ	wae	ㅟ	wo	ㅟ	we
ㅟ	ui

Vowels

eo, eu, ae and oe are single vowels in romanized Korean as shown below. Therefore careful attention should be given to these vowels: take care that you are not splitting them into two. Also, careful attention should be given to “u/우”—do not read it as an English “you.” Some common vowels which might confuse you could be:

a	ㅏ	ah, father	(shorter than these as)
eo	ㅓ	bird, serve
o	ㅗ	ball, pore	(shorter than this a or o)
u	ㅜ	book, school	(shorter than these oos)
eu	ㅡ	broken, golden
i	ㅣ	bee, sheep	(shorter than these ees)
ae	ㅐ	apple, bad
e	ㅔ	bed, egg
oe	ㅖ	wear, welcome

Consonants

You won't have much trouble pronouncing romanized Korean consonants except for some tensed ones which require a relatively strong muscular effort in the vocal organs without the expulsion of air. Here are some examples:

kk	ㄱ	ski, sky	(k after s)
tt	ㄷ	steak, sting	(t after s)
pp	ㅍ	speak, spy	(p after s)
ss	ㅅ	sea, sir	(s before a vowel)
jj	ㅈ	bridge, midget	(similar to a tutting sound in an exhaling way)

When reading in Hangeul, remember to read from top to bottom, then left to right. A consonant-vowel-consonant (CVC) syllable is written like this in Korean:

If I was writing the word bat the Korean way, it would look like this:

t

The word wonderful would be grouped like this: wo de fu n r l

Here’s how the word potato looks in Korean:

감자

kam ja

Can you figure out this word? 학교

This is the word hak/kyo, meaning school.

Let’s try the sentence, “I want a dog.” How would you read this?

나는 개가 필요해.

Naneun gaega pilyohae.

This literally translates to “I dog want.” Korean doesn’t have the articles “a” or “an.”

Grammar

The goal of this book is to teach vocabulary and phrases in Korean, allowing students to learn Korean grammar through induction. That is, students see how the grammar is used in context for communication, and draw conclusions as to grammar rules from these observations. Having said that, here are a few quick notes on Korean grammar to get you oriented.

In reading sentences, remember the verb is always last.

Subject, object, verb

EXAMPLE: In English we would say Anna eats cake.
But in Korean, we would say Anna cake eats.

The other words in a sentence usually have topic markers. That means the words are marked as to whether they are the subject or object of the sentence.

EXAMPLE: In English: Anna eats cake. (subject, verb, object)
 In Korean: Anna[ga] cake[ul] eats.

Korean is not a tonal language like Chinese. But similarly, with English, when you ask a question, you have a rising tone toward the end. Declarative sentences end with a falling tone.

How to Use This Picture Dictionary

First, when learning Korean, it is best to play to your strengths. Focus on what you do best (for example, speaking or reading), and come back and learn the rest later.

Second, as the vocabulary in this book is arranged by theme, it is best to approach this dictionary topically, rather than systematically. Find the topics that are useful or of interest to you, and learn those words first. Third, practice and use the words in context with the conversations and phrases provided.

Fourth, listen to the audio recordings several times and read or say the Korean words aloud as you look at the pictures. You can also use your finger to trace out the corresponding Korean characters as you do so. If you have time, practice writing the characters in a notebook or on blank sheets of paper. This will help reinforce your memory of the vocabulary and phrases.

Finally, this picture dictionary should be just a beginning and not an end. If you find a topic that interest you, use the information in the picture dictionary as a jumping off point to learn more about that topic in Korean.

There are indexes at the end of the book which will help you find the meanings of words you have learned, but which you may have forgotten. The following information is included for each entry—the English word, the Korean word in Hangeul, the romanization, the lesson number and the order in which the word appeared in that lesson, followed by the page number where the word appears. For example:

English word	Hangeul	Romanization	Lesson and order	Page in book
a brief moment	짧은 순간	jjalbeun sungan	[15-30]	37

The free online audio contains recording of native Korean speakers reading all the vocabulary and sentences, so students can quickly acquire the correct pronunciation. A link to download the recordings can be found on page 96.

Some common measure words in Korean

Counting words or measure words are used to quantify things, just as in English when we say “three sheets of paper” or “two cups of coffee.” However, in Korean, they put the noun first. So it looks like this: “coffee, two cups.”

MEASURE WORDS	MAIN USES	EXAMPLES
벌 beol	옷 ot clothing	옷 세벌 ot saebeol three pieces of clothing
척 cheok	배 bae boats or ships	배 두척 bae ducheok two boats
채 chae	집 jip houses	집 네채 jip naechae four houses
다발 dabal	꽃 ggot flowers or plants	꽃 다섯 다발 ggot daseot dabal five flowers

그루 geuru	나무 namu trees	나무 한그루 namu hangeuru	one tree
권 gwon	책 chaek books	책 열권 chaek yeolgwon	ten books
마리 mari	동물 dongmul animals	개 세마리 gae saemari	three dogs
명 myeong	사람 saram people	다섯명 daseotmyeong	five people
켈레 kyeollae	양말 yangmal socks	양말 두켈레 yangmal dukyeollae	two pairs of socks
점 jeom	그림 geurim paintings	그림 한점 geurim hanjeom	one painting

9 사람 한그룹

ABOUT TUTTLE
“Books to Span the East and West”

Our core mission at Tuttle Publishing is to create books which bring people together one page at a time. Tuttle was founded in 1832 in the small New England town of Rutland, Vermont (USA). Our fundamental values remain as strong today as they were then—to publish best-in-class books informing the English-speaking world about the countries and peoples of Asia. The world has become a smaller place today and Asia’s economic, cultural and political influence has expanded, yet the need for meaningful dialogue and information about this diverse region has never been greater. Since 1948, Tuttle has been a leader in publishing books on the cultures, arts, cuisines, languages and literatures of Asia. Our authors and photographers have won numerous awards and Tuttle has published thousands of books on subjects ranging from martial arts to paper crafts. We welcome you to explore the wealth of information available on Asia at www.tuttlepublishing.com.

TINA CHO is the author of The Girl's Guide to Manners published by Rose Kidz Publishing 2014 and forthcoming books: Rice from Heaven (Little Bee Books, 2018) and Korean Celebrations (Tuttle Publishing, 2018). Tina writes for the educational and children's markets. She lives in South Korea with her husband, Jackeun, and two children while teaching at an international school.
